

ABSTRACT

This invention relates to the embedding of a microelectronic chip into printed media, including but not limited to books and magazines. The microelectronics component is switched on by opening the printed medium or by triggering an on /off mechanism. The invention may have various embodiments that can be <sup>used</sup> to project speech, music or other tonal signals upon operation.

10068350